

Mark Elison Hoversten, Ph.D., FASLA, AICP serves as dean of the North Carolina State University College of Design (July 2016) and as a professor of landscape architecture and environmental planning. A Fellow of the Yaddo arts colony, the American Society of Landscape Architects, and the Council of Educators in Landscape Architecture (CELA), Hoversten has received 17 national and regional planning and design awards including the W.K. Kellogg Foundation Engagement Award for the Western U.S. Region. His work has been featured in Landscape Architecture Magazine, Public Roads, and TR News. He served as president of the Council of Educators in Landscape Architecture, a member of the Editorial Review Board for Land, a member of the Dorothea Dix Park Conservancy Board, and on committees and review teams for national organizations including the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and the Landscape Architecture Accreditation Board. Prior to his work in higher education, he served as an associate at Royston Hanamoto Alley and Abey and managed land planning for the 22,000-acre new town of Summerlin, a division of the Howard Hughes Corporation.

Hoversten holds a bachelor of landscape architecture and fine arts degrees from the University of Minnesota. He holds a master's degree in painting and drawing from the University of New Mexico and a master of fine arts degree in painting from the University of Iowa. He completed his Ph.D. in landscape planning from Lincoln University in New Zealand.