

Nan Ellin, Ph.D, is Dean of the College of Architecture and Planning and Professor of Urban Design at the University of Colorado Denver. Her scholarship and practice have contributed to co-create places where buildings harmonize with nature and people, and economies thrive along with communities, arts, and culture. Ellin has focused particularly on the revitalization of large swathes of urban fabric along waterways and rail corridors, spearheading Canalscape for the Phoenix region, the 9 Line in Salt Lake City, the Trinity Innovation District for North Texas, and eDEN for Denver. She holds a PhD from Columbia University in Urban Design and her writings have been translated into 13 languages, including the books Good Urbanism, Postmodern Urbanism, Architecture of Fear, Integral Urbanism, and Phoenix: 21st-Century City. Ellin previously served as Founding Dean of the College of Architecture, Planning & Public Affairs at The University of Texas at Arlington, Chair of the Department of Planning at the University of Utah, Planning Program Director at ASU, Director of the Urban & Metropolitan Studies Program at ASU, and Director of the PhD Program in Environmental Design & Planning in the College of Architecture and Environmental Design at ASU. She has additionally held faculty positions at New York University, University of Southern California, SCI-Arc, University of Cincinnati, and ASU.
